

Web Labs for Shared Learning

Learning Conversations

For Teachers, Students, Parents and Families

Join our series of Web Labs for online conversations

Learn to Change is holding a space for shared learning. We invite teachers, parents and students (16+), to join in, and we encourage you to bring along others you'd like to learn and create with (another teacher, parent, students, colleague, etc).

Web Labs are diverse in nature but share the value of conversation as a learning process.

Wellbeing in online environments will be the main principle for each series of Web Labs. We'll collaboratively tackle current topics and develop new skills in a 'maker spirit', including:

- Innovative methods and pedagogies to enhance collective intelligence, agility, collaborative skills and reflection
- Digital communicative awareness

Let's create space to learn together!

12th March, Friday 16:30-18:30 CET - Making space for languages

Register in advance for this meeting:

Here

9th April, Friday 16:30-18:30 CET - Deep listening: Connecting to what emerges

Register in advance for this meeting:

Here

7th May, Friday 16:30-18:30 CET - Culturally responsive spaces

Register in advance for this meeting:

Here

You can join one or all of the sessions

You are highly encouraged to come to the web labs with students (16+) and parents

(Each participant should register separately)

Priority will be given to those that had not the opportunity to attend the winter school in Cyprus

T4Es who attend all three sessions could gain a certificate of attendance

